

ABSTRACT

A semiconductor device includes: an inductor (1) provided with a conductor interconnection formed spirally on a semiconductor substrate (10); and a shield (6a) that is provided with a continuous conductor interconnection provided along the outer periphery of the spiral pattern of the inductor (1) while opening a portion of the conductor interconnection, and that is electrically connected to ground potential.